Third public defender added, Tucker named

BY DENA BISNETTE
Hancock County will have three public defenders beginning June 1.

The county's two present public defenders, Nicholas M. Haas and Clement Stephen Benvenuti, appeared before the board of supervisors Friday to request addition of a third public defender.

Haas blamed an increasingly heavy workload, expenses and the number of courts involved for the need for more assistance.

The public defenders are currently responsible for representing indigents, as well as handling proceedings in Youth Court, lunacy, revocations, Justice Court, Waveland and Bay St. Louis City Courts and appeals.

The new public defender will be James G. Tucker III, who will be paid $16,000 annually, the same rate as Haas and Benvenuti.

The supervisors turned down a request that the salaries of all three be set at $20,000 each, with Board President and Beat Two Supervisor Ronald Cuevas explaining that the money for the public defender's office has already been budgeted for this year.

He commented that it will be hard enough for the board to find the money to pay Tucker, although the supervisors do recognize the need for more assistance in the public defender's job.

"During the last term of court, all 13 days was criminal work and it was all our criminal work," Haas said.

Haas said he felt that hiring Tucker will be "a hand-aid approach" that will work for a while but will not be enough. He said he believes the board will eventually have to consider setting up a full-time public defender's office with at least one investigator and a full-time secretary.

Beat Three Supervisor Roger Dale Ladner pointed out that the previous public defender, William F. Frisbie, had attempted to do the job alone, although he sometimes associated another attorney on a specific case.

"I understand that that's why he left, because he never did get any help," Ladner said.

He also asked, before participating in a unanimous vote to hire Tucker, whether doing so "would be fair to Bill Frisbie."

The board's next regular meeting is scheduled for 9 a.m. June 6 in the upstairs boardroom of the Hancock County Courthouse.

Alcohol related accident claims three lives

BY D.C. HARVILL
Hancock County's hopes of a fatality-free Memorial Day Weekend were dashed Monday afternoon when an accident, apparently caused by a drunk driver, killed three people on Interstate 10.

The accident occurred midway between State Highways 603 and 607 and had holiday traffic backed up more than three miles for over an hour.

According to witnesses, Victor Henry Weatherford, 55, of Hammond, La. was driving the wrong direction down the east bound lane, causing the accident, involving four cars, which killed him and two others.

Highway Patrol information officer Joe Gazzo said truckers had informed the Patrol by radio that a car was travelling the wrong way on the interstate, but the accident happened before they could prevent it.

Eddie Ethridge, 33, of Mobile, Al, said he was driving east bound behind a freight truck when he saw a car travelling against the flow of traffic.

The truck driver, Ethridge said, attempted to force the car onto the median but couldn't because of another car in the lane beside him. The truck driver then pulled out of the car's path.

"When the truck moved out of the way I was looking at the driver or the car eye to eye. He must have been doing 70 miles per hour," Ethridge said. "I just had time to swerve. When I did he clipped the rear end of my car and spun it out of the road."

"If I had reacted any slower we wouldn't be here now," Ethridge explained.

After plowing over several wax myrtle bushes, Ethridge's white Audi came to rest in tall grass off the right of way. Ethridge, his wife, Judy, and their two small sons were unhurt.

Weatherford's car then struck an orange Toyota head-on and, according to Gary Busby, 35, of McComb, became airborne, "going over" a car driven by Michael Dykes, of Pascagoula.

Dykes' Chevrolet, in which Busby and Jim Coston, 22, of Pascagoula were passengers then rear-ended the Toyota.

Dykes suffered a laceration to the head and was taken to Hancock Medical Center for treatment. Neither Coston nor Busby suffered serious injury, though Busby said his toe might be broken.

"When I first saw the car coming I thought it was one of those weird cars where the back looks like the front, then I saw that it was headed our direction," Busby said.

Everything happened so fast," Busby continued. "After he hit the Toyota the air was full of dust, glass and metal."

Weatherford's car came to rest on the shoulder headed eastward some distance west of the Toyota.

One of the survivors informed sheriff's deputy Matt Karl that the Toyota began to burn underneath and he had put it out with a fire extinguisher he had in his car.

Mary Ellen Cannington, 25, of Norcross, Ga.; David Waters, 26, of Tucker, Ga., both in the Toyota, and Weatherford all died instantly.

"I ran back to check," Ethridge said, "but they were already dead; there was no pulse."

Coroner Harold Stiglet pronounced them dead at the scene.

Mystery surrounds how Weatherford came to be driving the wrong way. Patrolmen at the scene surmised that he had either entered at a rest area about three miles away or at Highway 603 five miles away, but conceded that they would probably never know.

Authorities admit Weatherford had been drinking, but refused to release information about his blood alcohol level.

"The thing that gets me," Caston said, "is that that couple was just like us. They had probably been home to visit for the holidays and were driving back minding their business, and something like this comes out of nowhere."

Dogs inspire couple to start own kennel

BY DENA BISNETTE
A Hancock County couple's dogs have inspired their owners to start a new business.

Lamay's Kennel, a boarding and grooming facility on Tequila Street in Bayou Phillip, provides a home away from home for dogs.

Linda Lamay and Bill Lamay, the kennel owners, raise Louisiana Catahoula and are members of the Louisiana Catahoula Association. They designed their new facility to provide the same services they want for their own dogs, Bill Lamay said.

The two were showing an adult Catahoula when they won a puppy as a door prize, necessitating a better and bigger place to keep their pets.

Showing that Catahoula pup also provided some of the initial investment, since the dog turned out to be a winner.

"You might say we won the Catahoula and it led to the kennel," Linda Lamay said.

Bill Lamay also described a trip the couple took several years ago on which they had to bring along an elderly pet because they could find no suitable place to board the dog. That helped provide additional enthusiasm for his wife's idea of building a kennel, he said.

"We built something we would keep our own animals in," she said.

Linda Lamay, a graduate of Angel's Academy of Dog Grooming in Kenner, La., handles the grooming services.

Her canine barber shop provides everything from baths and dips to haircuts which vary from simple to elaborate depending on type of dog and owner's request, and her customers have varied in size and breed from toy poodles to a St. Bernard.

She explained that bathing, KENNEL—PAGE 7A

Farmers Home election set June 30

One candidate is running for the Farmers Home Administration County Committee in the June 30 election, FmHA County Supervisor Frank W. Niemeyer Jr., reports.

Any person who has an interest in a farm in the county as owner, tenant or sharecropper is considered a farmer and is eligible to vote, Niemeyer said. Spouses of eligible farmers also are considered farmers for voting eligibility.

Ballots for the election are published in the June 2 edition of The Sea Coast Echo and also are available at the FmHA county office at Suite "H" Hancock Square, 817 Highway 90, Bay St. Louis.

If they cannot be returned to the county office in person, ballots may be mailed in, Niemeyer said.

Among other duties, county committees help determine whether an applicant is eligible for a FmHA farm loan. Two of the three members are elected by county farmers, and the third is appointed by FmHA.

PRISON FOCUS

America's prison systems are becoming more crowded, more expensive and less effective each year. In the last ten years, this country's prison population has grown by 70 percent.

It now costs tens of thousands of dollars to house one inmate annually, and some say America's prisons are failing in their primary responsibility to deter crime and rehabilitate those incarcerated.

Are America's prisons becoming little more than warehouses for society's outcasts? ETV viewers can learn more when "Moments to Failure: America's Prison Crisis" airs at 10 p.m., Thursday, June 2, on Mississippi ETV.

Although I'm so fond of tomatoes that I often pluck and eat them right out of the garden, sun-warmed and ever so juicy. I also like to slice them into salads, mix them into all sorts of dishes, make lots of fresh tomato sauce and tomato relish—and so on—for, once summer's over, I shy away from the marble-hard tasteless tomatoes of winter, and turn to canned or frozen, instead.

But, as long as there are those good tomatoes around, I indulge to the fullest, don't you? And, I like to cook green tomatoes, too.

One of my favorite quick-and-easy ways to cook fresh green tomatoes is that long-time favorite, so popular in the Tidewater country of Virginia:

BACON-TOMATOES
 Several slices bacon
 Several thick green tomato slices

Toast slices
 Pepper, salt
 Fry the bacon crisp, drain, while you fry thick slices of tomatoes in a little of the hot fat. Pepper and salt, and serve atop buttered toast.

FRENCH FRIED TOMATO SLICES

(In some parts of France, this is a special favorite).
 Several tomato slices

Egg and milk batter
 Oil for frying
 Branches of parsley
 Make a rather thick batter of an egg and enough milk to serve the purpose. Fry in a little hot oil, along with small sprigs of parsley. Delicious!

FRIED TOMATOES IN CREAM GRAVY

Several tomatoes, sliced
 Flour for dusting
 Butter or margarine
 Brown sugar for sprinkling
 Cream as you desire
 Dust the tomato slices thoroughly with flour and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Cook slowly in a little butter or margarine, and sprinkle with brown sugar. Turn the slices with a broad spatula and sprinkle with the sugar, taking care lest the butter or sugar burn.

When the slices are barely brown, pour cream over them, covering the bottom of the skillet, and continue cooking until the cream is well mixed with the butter and the sugar.

Place tomatoes on a deep platter or in a shallow bowl, and pour the sauce over—and serve. Adjust quantities as you wish, of course.

Fire ruled accident

BY DENA BISNETTE

A fire that destroyed a Silver Creek Acres home about 6:30 a.m. Sunday has been ruled accidental.

Hancock County Fire Marshal Jay Marsh said his investigation indicated that the fire was a rekindle of a smaller blaze that damaged the kitchen of the home of Robert and Debbie Gouldin at about 3:36 a.m. Saturday.

He said the residents were in the building when the Saturday fire occurred but not when the blaze started again at about 6:30 a.m. Sunday.

Marsh said the initial fire was apparently caused by a smoldering potholder that fell between the stove and the wall behind it. The item had been hanging on the wall above the stove.

Kiln Volunteer Fire Department responded to the scene of both fires.

Beachfront fest to feature Moseley works

The works of Mississippi primitive artist Alice Moseley will be featured at Sunday's Beachfront festival in Bay St. Louis.

Moseley's painting career had begun earlier in her life, the last decade might not have seen the profusion of color and animation which has sprung from her canvases since the early 1970's.

She calls herself a "professional late bloomer," and from her Plum Point Retreat on Lake Enid near Batesville, her work has found its way into the galleries and homes of art patrons throughout the country.

Her paintings defy a label. Idyllic folk best describes her style. Brilliant color and simplistic detail are her benchmarks. The result is often a panoramic view out of a folk past, faithfully conveyed from a lifetime of images recorded by an extremely keen mind's eye.

Public and critical acclaim for Mrs. Moseley's work has become commonplace.

Dr. Malcolm Norwood, head of the Art Department at Delta State University and judge at one of the many competitive shows where Moseley's paintings have won recognition, noted that her work "stood head and shoulders above the work of those who had studied art...It's very fresh and exciting."

Paintings begin as "titles" in Mrs. Moseley's imagination. When a title comes to her, she has it engraved on a brass plate and proceeds to let the ideas flow from the title to the masonite board upon which she paints.

The picture that results usually reflects the often humorous ways of life, particularly those of rural Mississippi during her earlier years.

Mrs. Moseley's studio at Plum Point awaits visitors. The artists suggests that from Pope you call and she will meet you half-way since this wooded retreat is difficult to find.

Over at the Retreat, the visitor finds one building that is a tenant house brought from Elvis Presley's Graceland Mansion.

The other is a "juke house" found along a Mississippi highway and disassembled log by log, then reassembled at Plum Point.

Viewers enjoy browsing the studio and asking about stories that lie behind each of the works. To their delight, the folk artist recounts events and odd happenings from her past.

A viewer often points to a painting and asks, "How long did it take you to do that?" To which she unhesitatingly replies, "Seventy-six years and some odd days."

County Agent Notes

Mud Daubers

You can safely remove mud dauber nests from your home without fear of being stung. The mud daubers, solitary wasps that build small nests of mud on outside walls of buildings and structures, don't defend those nests when threatened.

Most of the mud dauber nests can simply be picked off and discarded.

To keep you from being confused, let me describe what mud daubers look like so you won't get stung making a mistake. Mud daubers are long and slender, and have a prominent threadlike waist.

Some mud daubers are black and yellow, and they build a series of cylindrical mud cells. They plaster these cells with mud, forming a nest the size of your fist.

Another species of mud dauber you may find are robust, black-colored organ pipe daubers. These insects build pipelike tubes on the sides of smooth surfaces like walls and bridges.

A third species of mud dauber inhabits abandoned nests of other mud daubers. These daubers are easily recognized by their bluish-to-blackish metallic color and blue-colored wings.

Remember that all you have to do to remove their nests to just pull them off.

Watermelon Check

If you have a small watermelon patch here in Hancock County, you may want to check for striped and spotted cucumber beetles. They will attack the melon seedlings and strip seedling leaves.

The area is still buzzing about the Gulf Coast Air Show this past weekend at Stennis International Airpark sponsored by the Experimental Aircraft Association Chapter 479.

It appears many will be ready for the next one because they failed for one reason or another to attend and heard how good this year's was from someone who attended.

Michael Smith, air show coordinator said, the show's success was really helped by the cooperation the organization received from the Hancock County Port and Harbor officials and also the Hancock County Supervisors.

We understand several residents were surprised at the number of buildings located at the Stennis Air Park and the number of jobs created by the industries located there.

We wish to congratulate the members of the Experimental Aircraft Association Chapter 479 for a job well done.

Big John is already stirring the pot in preparation for Boy Scout Troop 208's Annual Spaghetti Supper Friday night.

The dinner will be from 5 to 8 p.m. at the American Legion Home, Green Meadow Road, Bay St. Louis.

Proceeds from the dinner will be used by the Scouts for their summer trip and dinners are for a donation of $3 each.

Another fundraiser will be an Italian Spaghetti Dinner sponsored by the Waveland American Legion on Saturday.

The dinners will be available from 5 to 8 p.m. at the Legion's home on Coleman Avenue. Dinners are for a donation of $3.50 adults and $2.50 children.

Sunday is the day for the Annual Bay St. Louis Beachfront Festival.

Tyson McMahon, festival chairman, tells us there will be three bandstands this year.

Among the bands scheduled will be a U.S. Navy Band and a U.S. Air Force Band.

So, don't forget the Beachfront Festival is scheduled for Sunday.

Commend thoroughness of Hancock pharmacists

The Sea Coast Echo Editor

I hope you will print this letter and help my family and me with an answer.

We have a summer home over here and our home in New Orleans.

We have had prescriptions filled over here at one of your excellent drug stores. We find the druggists here put warning on the medicine (like, take on empty stomach, take an hour before meals, etc.) That is wonderful, and now we are bringing all our prescriptions here.

Could someone please explain why the druggists here are so thorough and caring?

I must admit, not one time in New Orleans or Metairie have we received the necessary instructions.

We praise these fine gentlemen.

Eyes on Mississippi

By Bill Minor

JACKSON—Although state legislators are reluctant to admit it, Gov. Ray Mabus had more impact on the legislative budgeting process in his first session than any governor in recent history.

At least, lawmakers did not junk the executive budget this time, and consider only their own budget prepared by the Legislative Budget Office, as has been the case the past four years.

The dual budget situation has existed since the 1984 Administrative Reorganization Act that was passed after a 1983 state Supreme Court decision stripped legislators from the old State Budget Commission.

Under the Reorganization Act, the governor has the Fiscal Management Board to prepare an executive budget, and the Legislature still produces its own proposed budget drafted by the LBO.

After he went into office in mid-January, Mabus weighted in with a set of budget recommendations built around a $198 million education package for teachers' salaries, higher education and junior colleges.

He had an accompanying plan to fund the increases without any tax hikes by some creative reallocation of some $100 million in existing financial resources and $10 million in cuts in certain agencies, among them forestry, welfare, and educational television.

In the main, the legislature bought the Mabus education package, giving a net increase of $142 million for education, including public schools, universities and junior colleges.

Besides, the lawmakers, while refusing to go along with the cuts that Mabus proposed, and eliminating $32 million he wanted to capture from the State Aid Road program, did adopt $54 million of the governor's creative financing plan.

Lawmakers may contend that outside of the Mabus education package they stuck with their own budget recommendations, rather than the budget given them by the governor.

But of the $1.798 billion 1988-89 general fund budget, education—both public schools and higher education—accounts for 65 per cent of the total budget.

Arguably, then, it could be said that Mabus' budget priorities represented the dominant part of the overall state general fund expenditures approved by the Legislature. The lawmakers also adopted Mabus' projection of 4 percent revenue growth next fiscal year.

Does this all mean that Mabus is going to be given a more influential role in the fiscal management of state government than the legislative branch has been willing to give governors in the past?

Is the day going to come when the Legislature will have only one budget to consider, namely, the governor's?

A lot seems to hinge on how next year's budget preparation process goes starting in the fall when House Speaker Tim Ford and his House reformers show up on the Legislative Budget Committee replacing the House Old Guard that has long dominated legislative budget projections.

Ford and the new leadership in the House generally had backed most of Mabus' legislative and fiscal program. But they are believed to be skeptical of Mabus' contention that the state is going to be able to fund the 1989-90 fiscal year budget without a tax increase.

Meantime the antiquated legislative system of constructing the state budget by "single shot" appropriation bills instead of one consolidated budget bill once again plagued the recently-ended legislative session.

Some 250 separate appropriation bills were passed at the 1988 session, strung out over many days, and most of them wound up in separate House-Senate conference committees, clogging the frantic last days of the session.

As late as May 1, with just two days left to meet the constitutional five-day deadline for passing appropriations, the Legislature found itself faced with 140 appropriation bills in conference.

As a result, spending bills began flying through the air like bullets in a battle-zone.

The single-shot appropriation is a holdover from the 1890 Constitution. Section 69 says that except for appropriations for the executive, judicial and legislative departments and state debt service, separate bills must be used.

Over the years, that has come to be interpreted as meaning that a separate bill must be used for every appropriation.

Some fiscal leaders are convinced there has to be a better way.

Governor's Weekly Column

Gov. Ray Mabus

I was given the privilege of speaking to the graduating classes at the University of Mississippi and Tougaloo College recently, and it gave me pause to think about their futures and the future of Mississippi.

I challenged them to consider what they will contribute to Mississippi, to their communities and to moving this state ahead.

When I was an undergraduate student during the 1960s, our campus and our country underwent more change than in the nearly half century that preceded it. There was pain in some of that change, but there was also pride and a sense of Mississippi being born anew, preserving what was right in its past while striving for what was best in its future.

Now, the future that my graduating class saw then, on a late spring day in 1969, has become the present—inescapably different from what we had imagined, in some ways less than we hoped for and in other ways better than we dared to dream.

Most of all, progress came because there were people who cared, who were ready to risk position or popularity and often even their own safety—people who were convinced that what they gave was at least as important as what they got.

Our young graduates of today are heirs to that progress. Law school, medical school, the professions and business—the opportunities belong to them, along with the chance to earn more, to live better, to acquire comfort and exert influence.

Earning a college degree is a tangible sign of success. But it carries with it the temptation for graduates to become almost entirely self-absorbed, to ask only what they can do for themselves.

The decade of the 1980s has, in too many ways, sanctified selfishness and invited us to believe that the buck is the only bottom line.

I am not suggesting that it is wrong to pursue personal success. But I do believe that is not enough—that the measure of our lives must be greater than a statement of our net worth.

And I do believe that each graduate, in his or her own way, can make a contribution.

They can walk the beaten paths of advantage and never raise their eyes to a wider field of vision, or, by their influence and votes, they can insist on a better, stronger, more decent society.

You don't have to be in politics to have a share in public life. My wish is that they will do well and go as far as their talents will take them.

Part of that hope is that they take up the challenge of doing and standing for something—that is their day and generation, they will see the world to be helped, and that they will give their hands and their hearts to the task.

In Congress

By Congressman Trent Lott

POT SHOTS DEFLECTED

It astounds me just how easy it is to sit back and throw stones at the United States. Certainly other countries take aim at us, but a lot of the criticism comes from within. Neysayers hum fastballs and doomsayers the curve. But take a moment to reflect and consider where we are today.

First and foremost, we are not at war. We haven't been for quite some time. Instead, our President is talking face to face with General Secretary Gorbachev of the Soviet Union. And we aren't talking about ending the world. We are taking action to actually reduce the number of weapons worldwide.

We have taken the idea of a freeze one step further. And let's not forget about the Strategic Defense Initiative; a possible answer to the nuclear threat. It's going to take some time to develop, but you know the story of Rome. When I think of S.D.I. I think of the football coach who when asked whether he preferred a strong offense or a strong defense, he replied, "both."

The economic climate is always an easy target, but that's because the indicators change each month. One day the stock market climbs then the next day it drops. It's getting to the point where I can't distinguish a bull from a bear anymore. That's probably why I don't play the market. But the facts speak for themselves.

The average inflation rate has dropped considerably to about the three percent mark;

Our Gross National Product has expanded for more than 65 straight months. That's a record. In fact, the GNP grew at a 2.3 percent annual rate in the first quarter of this year, so we're still growing.

The real median family income rose nine percent between 1981 and 1986. Imports are down and exports are up. And the U.S. economy has produced four million new businesses. What does all this mean? It means that consumers are spending more, businesses are investing more and our trade deficit is declining more and more each day.

And more people are working now than ever before. Unemployment nationwide is hovering around the five percent level and in Mississippi it's dropped more than three points in the last few months alone. Sure, we need to create more jobs and better jobs, but think of it this way: 95 percent of the people in this country who want to work are working today.

This doesn't mean we can't improve the situation. We must continue to battle on the drug front. And I would like us to make child care easier and education better, but we're working in these areas.

Together, we've worked hard to make America a better place to live and I think, for the most part, we have succeeded. This is a great country and I'm proud of what we're doing and what we stand for. Are you?

What you don't see with your eyes, do not speak with your tongue.

Former Bay resident honored as educator of special students

A former Bay St. Louis resident has been honored for her work as a special education teacher.

Charlotte Chapman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Stiglet of Bay St. Louis and daughter-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Chapman, also of Bay St. Louis, was recently featured in "Counterpoint," a quarterly publication of the National Association of State Directors of Special Education.

She was among 20 North Carolina teachers featured in an article in the magazine and the only one from Iredell County.

Chapman, who has also been featured in the Iredell County newspaper, is employed by the Mooresville School District, where she has worked since 1982.

For the last 10 years, she has taught developmentally disabled and learning disabled students.

Although she was originally assigned to a learning disabled class in another school district because no one else wanted it and because she was the most recently hired teacher, she has continued working, at her own request, with children who have special needs.

Chapman works in a primary cross-categorical special education class, teaching language arts and math in the morning and resource instruction in the afternoon.

All of her students are assigned to grade-appropriate classrooms for part of the day, and she consults with the receiving teachers in a program designed in part to enable her students to progress toward acceptable behavior and improve their self-concept.

In addition to her teaching duties, Chapman is School-based Placement Committee Chairperson for Park View Elementary School, where she is assigned. She also serves as one of two Mentor Special Education Teachers in her district, a member of the district's records monitoring team, Park View Elementary's pupil assistance team, Special Olympics volunteer and past visitation committee member of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

Kennel.....

brushing and flea extermination are essential to a pet's health.

She said she has volunteered to provide grooming service for the Hancock County Humane Society because she understands that a well-groomed dog has a better chance of finding a home. In doing so, she has seen some dogs who need help badly, with mats in their fur that go all the way to their skin, or with severe flea infestations.

Once the dog has its bath and haircut, it is placed in front of blow dryers so that no animal goes home still wet, she said. Grooming is offered on an appointment basis and the amount of time each pet takes will depend on various factors including size, hair type and temperament.

Pick-up and delivery is available for grooming as well as boarding.

Regular grooming programs can be set up for a pet and are less expensive than intermittent grooming, Linda Lamay added.

The kennel is equipped with 16-by-4 foot indoor runs with pet doors which open to 16-by-4 foot outdoor runs, allowing the animals to have sunlight if they want it. Central air and heat is provided and everything is made of concrete and stainless steel because those materials resist contamination.

"Sanitation is the biggest thing," Bill Lamay said, referring to the problems involved in operating a kennel.

Also included is a family run, which allows dogs who live in the same household or mothers and puppies to be boarded together.

Boarding is $6 per day for small dogs and $8 for large ones. The kennel supplies food unless an owner provides specific rations and owners are responsible for providing medications and instructions.

In case of emergencies, the Lamays obtain permission to take dogs to their usual veterinarians as well as to local veterinarians used by the kennel.

A dog can be boarded overnight or for any number of days depending on the owner's request. The kennel currently has one dog expected to remain there for six months.

An additional problem with owning a kennel is getting attached to the animals.

"Every dog is different," said Bill Lamay.

"I'm going to really miss this one when he goes," he added, petting a weimaraner that will be a long-term boarder.

"Different dogs are giving us different ideas. We're learning from them what we need to add in the future."

Plans include possible addition of larger runs.

Linda Lamay said the kennel has been receiving a good reaction from people considering housing pet there.

"People coming out here are really surprised about what we have here and how nice it is," Linda Lamay said.

More information about Lamay Kennels can be obtained by calling 467-5281.

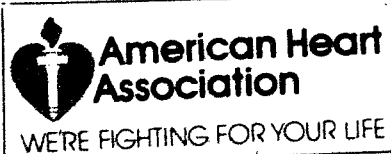

Bill Lamay checks on one of the kennel's long-term boarders, a weimaraner.

WHO PAYS?

Patrick is dying of aids. He is 30 years old and last year his medical bills totaled $125,000. Patrick can no longer work. He has no private health insurance, so Medicaid pays for his care.

Patrick is one of 56,000 Americans diagnosed with AIDS since 1981. Another 1.5 million are already infected with the AIDS virus.

By 1991, it is estimated that the bill for caring for AIDS patients will reach $8 to $10 billion a year. At least half of that will be paid by American taxpayers.

"Who Pays for AIDS?" a "Frontline" documentary with Judy Woodruff, at 9 p.m., Tuesday, June 7, on Mississippi ETV, examines the health care crisis created by the AIDS epidemic and the battle that has ensued among local, state and the federal governments over who will pay the soaring cost of AIDS.

Corps lake stocked with big fish

MOBILE—Reeling in Gulf race striped bass that tip the scales at 20 pounds or more is not unusual for anglers at Lake Seminole operated by the Mobile District of the Army Corps of Engineers.

Anglers lure the big fish with live bait—eels or shad. The largest catch reported weighed over 60 pounds.

The lake is formed by the Corps' Jim Woodruff Lock and Dam in the northern part of the Florida panhandle.

Parts of it extend into south Georgia and Alabama.

Lake Seminole crosses the Florida-Alabama line at Chattahoochee, Fla.

What is unusual is the cooperative efforts of the Corps of Engineers and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to keep repopulating the Apalachicola River and other rivers that flow into the Gulf of Mexico with these tasty fish.

The Gulf race striped bass is considered distinct from its close relatives which inhabit the Atlantic coastal water of the United States.

Because of its genetic differences, this species once inhabited the warmer waters of the Gulf coastal rivers. At the present time, the Apalachicola River is its principal refuge.

Frank Parauka, Fish and Wildlife biologist, reports, "We just finished stocking 150,000 stripers the morning of May 6, and we'll put several hundred thousand more fingerlings into the water there this year."

The stocking process begins with catching adult spawning stripers in a large cylindrical trap similar to one used by the California Game and Fish Commission to trap salmon. Space in the boat house at Lake Seminole is made available as a holding tank until enough are caught to transfer them to Welaka National Fish Hatchery about 250 miles away, where they are spawned.

The fry, about the size of a pin head, are stocked in ponds for rearing to fingerling size. When they reach four to six inches in length they are ready for their journey to the rivers and lakes that will become their homes.

Parauka says that the cooperation the Wildlife Service gets from the Corps is helpful in keeping this cycle going to propagate the species. "I keep in touch with Lake Seminole's resource manager, Eddie Sosebee, and with Joe Kight. They let us use their parking area. We keep our distribution trucks and boats there, and that saves us a lot of time."

"The Florida and Georgia people have done a lot of work on the Chattahoochee River below George William Andrews Lock and Dam to develop another brood stock collection area. The largest taken to the hatchery from there weighed 36 pounds."

It's Hard To Live Comfortably With Dinosaurs.

Replace Your Old Air Conditioner And Gas Furnace With The Electric Heat Pump.

Having a dinosaur of an old air conditioning unit outside and a prehistoric gas furnace inside can be very uncomfortable. It's also sending your energy bills through the roof. You should cool your home this summer with a high-efficiency electric heat pump. It provides a constant, even cooling in your home, unlike draftier stop-and-go air conditioners. Heat pumps are also quieter, more economical and heat homes in winter. So ditch those dinosaurs. Replace them with the modern, energy-efficient electric heat pump.

It Cools. It Heats. It Saves.

The REGIONAL WOMEN'S CENTER at SLIDELL MEMORIAL HOSPITAL presents a series of lectures and discussion groups for women.

EVERYTHING WOMEN ALWAYS WANTED TO KNOW ABOUT SEXUALITY BUT WERE AFRAID TO ASK.

Wednesday, June 8, 7:30 PM
Women ask important questions when husbands or lovers withdraw intimacy because of fears and misconceptions about their sexual performance. Women hold the key to sexual health in the modern loving relationship and women are the ones to ask key questions that, when answered, lead to a compassionate understanding of the problem. This educational program is designed to enhance understanding and improve the sexual relationship. The Sexual Medicine Institute of Southeast Louisiana will answer major questions about male sexual performance. STEPHEN SOUTHERN, Ed.D., Sex and Marital Therapy Consultant, will discuss the complex responses of male sexuality. ESTEBAN ROMANO, M.D., and MAHMOUD DAF-TARY, M.D., Urologists, will provide information on the anatomy and physiology of males and will discuss medical advances in sexual medicine. Men welcome.

MEDICATIONS AND PREGNANCY

Thursday, June 9, 12:00 Noon
An informal discussion of the effects of prescription and non-prescription drugs as well as alcohol and tobacco on fetus and mom during pregnancy. The talk will cover fertility, conception through pregnancy and post-partum.
Dr. Clement RPH, Director of SMH Pharmacy Services will lead the discussion.

BREAST SELF-EXAM

Monday, June 13, Noon & 7:00 PM
Breast Cancer will strike one in ten American Women during their lifetime. Breast Self Exam is the key to early detection. FREE classes in BSE are taught by trained nurses. The Breast Diagnostic Center at SMH offers routine baseline mammograms for $59.00 (including Radiologist's Professional Fee). THIS EDUCATION IS A MUST FOR WOMEN AND ADOLESCENT GIRLS.

Bay St. Louis resident honored at Delgado

Dr. Jacqueline Vidrine, of Bay St. Louis, associate professor in manual communication and interpreter training, has been named winner of the 1987-88 "Excellence in Teaching" Award at Delgado Community College.

Dr. Vidrine was chosen from among 179 full-time Delgado teaching faculty who were eligible for the $1,000 award which was donated by the Delgado Development Foundation.

The award, presented at the college's 1988 commencement ceremonies, was based on student evaluations and recommendations made by peer faculty to a special Excellence in Teaching Committee.

Dr. Vidrine is well known internationally, nationally, and locally in the fields of deafness and sign language.

In 1984, she was selected in international competition for a Senior Fulbright Scholarship at the University of the West Indies in Trinidad, and thus became one of only a few community college faculty members ever to receive a Fulbright.

Dr. Vidrine is one of only nine members of the National Board of Directors for Interpreter Trainers and also serves on the eight-member International Advisory Board for the handicapped. She has numerous publications in the field of deafness.

In congratulating Dr. Vidrine, Delgado's Acting President James A. Caillier said, "You earned this honor through a devotion to teaching, dedication to serving the hearing impaired, and your national reputation in this specialized field. You exemplify excellence in teaching."

GCRL schedules summer sea camp

Gulf Coast Research Laboratory is expanding its successful Project Marine Discovery Program by initiating a Project Marine Discovery Sea Camp this summer for 9 to 14 year old students at the J.L. Scott Marine Education Center in Biloxi.

Six one-week sessions have been scheduled for June 13-17, June 20-24, July 25-29, August 1-5, August 8-12 and August 15-19, according to Dr. Sharon H. Walker, coordinator of marine educational programs for the Laboratory.

Project Marine Discovery, a cooperative program inaugurated during the 1987-88 school year by GCRL and the Mississippi-Alabama Sea Grant Consortium, involved 1,000 kindergartens through senior high students in its activities each month.

Students from Mississippi, Alabama and Louisiana were introduced to the marine environment and coastal resources through laboratory demonstrations, films, aquarium tours and hands-on activities.

The Sea Camp will be conducted by four marine science educators and four teaching assistants who will use boat trips, hikes, field excursions and arts and crafts to acquaint campers with local marine habitats and organisms.

An estimated weekly fee of $65 will cover instructional costs and materials, transportation, admission charges and other expenses. Campers will provide their own lunches, snacks and drinks.

Each one-week session will be limited to 100 participants who will be divided into appropriate age groups. Participants must pre-register by noon Monday of the week prior to the desired week of camp. A $10 deposit will be required.

Registration forms will be available at the Marine Education Center on May 27. For more information, contact Dr. Walker at 374-5550.

State health brochure eyes lead in water

Public water supply customers statewide need to know of the possible presence of lead in drinking water. The Mississippi State Department of Health (MSDH) is alerting them through a brochure.

David Mitchell, P.E., Bureau of Environmental Health, MSDH, said customers across the state will be notified in response to a 1986 Amendment to the Safe Drinking Water Act.

"The amendment requires all public water suppliers to notify customers of the possibility of lead in their drinking water," said Mitchell. "In Mississippi, we're sending the brochures to state water suppliers, who are responsible for sending them to each household."

The printing and distribution of 750,000 booklets represents the largest-ever direct mail communication on the part of MSDH. The brochure offers facts about lead concentrations in drinking water and answers questions homeowners most commonly ask. The booklet also gives information for individuals who want their drinking water tested.

High concentrations of lead can result in damage to the brain, kidneys, nervous system, and red blood cells. Lead poisoning poses an even greater risk for young children and pregnant women.

The purpose of the mailout is not to cause unnecessary panic among Americans but to make homeowners aware of the possibility of lead in their drinking water, said Mitchell.

"Mississippians can be assured that no public water suppliers in the state are providing drinking water which exceeds water quality standards for lead," Mitchell said. "There is, however, a chance that lead may be found in drinking water as a result of contact with plumbing products in the home."

TEEN TALK

Don't Let Others Toy With Emotions

By Dr. Ann F. Jarratt
Youth Development Specialist
Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service

"There is a girl I really like, but it seems that she likes me for a while and then stops. I can't seem to turn my feelings off and on like that. What should I do?"

Most people's feelings don't operate with an on/off handle like a faucet, and it sounds as if your's are no exception. It must be confusing and painful for you.

If this has happened several times, it would seem that a pattern has been set and you can expect it to be repeated.

Do the good feelings you have when she likes you make up the bad when she doesn't? If not, why do you keep putting yourself in a position to be hurt?

I'll bet if you start looking around, you'll notice that there are other girls you could be interested in. Why not give them a chance to find out what a worthwhile guy you are?

"My parents do not understand the word 'communicate.' Is there any hope?"

As long as you're all still breathing regularly, there is hope.

What role are you playing in the communication effort in your home? Are you demonstrating the expression of your true feelings and listening to your parents' feelings, accepting their right to have them even though they're very different from yours? If you are not, then that would be a good place to begin.

Don't be discouraged if this takes a while. Anything that's important and valuable takes time and dedication.

"All the boys I know are really wonderful people except that they drink. They seem to do it just to act big. There are also a lot of girls who drink for the same reason. Is there any way to influence them not to drink?"

There aren't many guarantees in the business of influencing people. Some will respond. Some won't. Some will appreciate your efforts. Others will dislike you because you won't join them.

In my opinion, the most important and helpful thing you can do for your friends is to stay straight and be true to your values. If they see you with your head on straight, having fun without being high on alcohol or other substances, and not having to deal with the bad outcomes they're having because of drinking, the smarter ones will wise up.

Probably the less you say about their lifestyle, the more they'll "hear" how you're living. Unfortunately, you may not help them all, and it may be a long time before you see any results. But one thing you will know for sure, you're building a better you.

If you have questions about your teenage years, write Dr. Ann Jarratt, Youth Development Specialist, P.O. Box 5446, Mississippi State, MS 39762.

Career-testing program good idea at any age

By J. SYD CONNER
LONG BEACH—Children don't always know what they want to be when they grow up. Sometimes, even adults don't know.

That's where career-testing, like that offered free by the University of Southern Mississippi to adults and youth aged 15 years or more, can come in handy.

"It gets pretty bad when you're my age and don't know what you want to do," Elizabeth Ann Meeks, 49, of Gautier said at a career-testing session recently at USM—Gulf Park in Long Beach. "I taught for 26 years, and I wanted to do something different. I thought this would give me some ideas."

When Meeks retired from teaching third grade at College Park Elementary School in Gautier, she said she was looking forward to a rest—but she soon changed her mind.

"I thought I would like being retired, but it gave me too much free time," she said. "I want to do something different and exciting, something that's a challenge. I think maybe I could find another career that I could go into."

She realizes a second career might require more schooling.

"I live at Gautier, and that would be close to the (Mississippi Gulf Coast Community College-USM) campus over there," she noted.

Meeks typifies many adults who take advantage of the USM Career Development Center's free testing and advising, offered continuously, by appointment, on the Hattiesburg campus and periodically at USM's Gulf Coast campuses in Biloxi, Gautier and Long Beach.

The Gulf Coast program serves persons who can't travel to Hattiesburg, said Diane Wagner, USM Adult Services Program coordinator.

"All of us know about a limited number of occupations,"

Wagner maintains. "This helps people become aware of other choices that they have."

Some 40 Mississippi Gulf Coast residents, from high school students to career-changing adults, came to USM—Gulf Park recently to take the Career Decision-Making System and Strong-Campbell Interest Inventory battery of tests, designed to reveal to participants the kinds of occupations they might enjoy.

They came from all walks of life—including career-military personnel approaching military retirement; mothers who have reached the "empty nest," with all their children gone; and high school students who are just beginning serious searches for their ideal careers.

Kenny Girot, 29, of Biloxi, an assistant vice president in Metro National Bank's Ocean Springs Division, said he intends to remain in his chosen career and took the tests just to confirm his decision before completing his schooling.

"I hope I'm in the right field," he said. "I believe that I am."

"I'd like to continue with the bank indefinitely and work on the side in investments. I'm returning to college (USM—Keesler in Biloxi)...to finish a degree in banking and finance. I've got about 30 (semester) hours left."

Laura Grimm, a 17-year-old Gulfport High School student who said she might attend USM next fall, said she hopes the career-testing will help her choose the college major and career that is right for her.

"I came to find out what I would be good at doing," she said after completing the tests. "I want to go into dealing with the public."

Among career choices she is considering are psychology, public relations and personnel.

"I've always been good at talking to people and learning more about them," she said. "It's been easy for them to talk to me. Public relations is a good way for me to do that."

But Laura may have spoken for everyone there when she explained her main objective in conscientiously choosing a career.

"I want to be happy," she said. "That's the big word."

For more information, call the USM Career Development Center in Hattiesburg at (601) 266-4848 or toll-free elsewhere in Mississippi, 1-800-CALL-USM.

TAKING CONTROL

WHAT ARE THE PROTECTIVE FACTORS?

1 Eat more cabbage-family vegetables. Important studies show these vegetables (also known as cruciferous) appear to protect you against colorectal, stomach and respiratory cancers. They include broccoli, cauliflower, brussels sprouts, all cabbages and kale.

2 Add more high-fiber foods. A high-fiber diet may protect you against colon cancer. Fiber occurs in whole grains, fruits and vegetables including peaches, strawberries, potatoes, spinach, tomatoes, wheat and bran cereals, rice, popcorn, whole-wheat bread.

3 Choose foods with Vitamin A. It may help protect you against cancers of the esophagus, larynx and lung. Fresh foods with beta-carotene like carrots, peaches, apricots, squash and broccoli are the best source, not vitamin pills.

4 Do the same for Vitamin C. This vitamin may help protect you against cancers of the esophagus and stomach. You'll find it naturally in lots of fresh fruits and vegetables like grapefruit, cantaloupe, oranges, strawberries, red and green peppers, broccoli, tomatoes.

5 Add weight control. Obesity is linked to cancers of the uterus, gallbladder, breast and colon. Exercise and lower calorie intake help you avoid gaining a lot of weight. Walking is ideal exercise for most people, and primes you for other sports. Check with your physician before strenuous activity, or a special diet.

Truck crashes along interstate

BY D.C. HARVILL
Three men narrowly escaped serious injury Friday night when the pickup they were in crashed into trees along Interstate 10.

Cleon Dunhurst, of Kiln, drove off the right side of the highway and, when he over-corrected, ran off the left side of the road colliding with trees in a wooded section of the median, according to State Trooper David Kenny, the officer at the scene.

The accident occurred between mile markers number eight and nine, near where a Memorial Day accident killed three people.

Passengers in the truck were Robert Larsen, of Kiln, and Michael Purvis, of Seminary.

According to Kenny, rescuers had to "rip the truck apart" to get the men out.

Dunhurst was treated at Hancock Medical Center and released.

The accident is still under investigation by the Mississippi Highway Patrol.

Boat b crash la

BY D.C. HARVILL
A boat found its way to water Friday after colliding with an 18-wheeler and launching over the railing of a bridge on Highway 603.

The boat, being trailered south behind a pickup driven by Jerry Blackmer of Hattiesburg, became unhitched on the Bayou La Croix Bridge and struck a freight truck owned by International Paper Company.

The fiberglass, front, right fender of the freight truck was shattered by the impact, and its tire was blown.

After coming perilously close to going through the bridge railing, according to witnesses, the truck driver brought the truck to a stop on the shoulder just of
